Moms Matter

Do you see your own children, grandchildren, or children you are in regular contact with as an opportunity to minister? What might you need to do in order to develop that kind of vision whether you are directly involved or not in the children's lives?

In all honesty, whether as a mother, grandmother, or other female figure (or as a father figure), are you investing in children for God's glory or for more selfish endeavors?

What kinds of decisions do you need to make in your own life – the things you say, do, and attitudes you have towards others, to be a better example, teacher, or leader for the children you are raising or to whom you are ministering?

What are some ways that you can show God's love, wisdom, and character to your children or those you have ministry to influence them?

What long term results or blessings would you like to result from your diligent motherhood (or dad, your fatherhood)?
